DETAILED ACTION

In view of the TaeDuk reference newly cited by Applicant, claims 8, 10, and 11 are rejected below. Also, in the previous Office Action, the Examiner indicated claim 9 as reciting patentable subject matter. However, upon further review of the prior art, new references have been found that, in combination with the newly cited TaeDuk reference, render this claim obvious. Accordingly, a new Non-Final rejection is set forth below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 8, 10, and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by TaeDuk.

As per claim 8, TaeDuk discloses reducing a flow rate when switching between heating and cooling modes (Abstract, lines 9-12), and controlling the four-way valve to switch when the flow rate is zero (i.e., when the compressor is at zero speed – Abstract, lines 12-14).

As per claims 10 and 11, TaeDuk further teaches controlling the four-way valve to convert the direction of refrigerant into an opposite direction after a predetermined time from the stoppage of the compressor (Abstract, lines 12-14).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over TaeDuk in view of Nakamura. TaeDuk teaches all aspects of the claim, as discussed above, except power being supplied to the valve for heating mode and shut off for cooling mode. This, however, is how four-way valves typically operate (See Nakamura, column 3, lines 56-61). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to apply this feature of Nakamura to the method of Hitachi for the purpose of effectively actuating/deactivating the four-way valve.
